Midnight Show Is Benefit For Waco Tornado Victims

The midnight show at the Cameron Theatre on Saturday will be a benefit performance for the Waco tornado victims. Showing will be "Column South", starring Audie Murphy and Joan Evans.

Admission for the 11 p. m. movie is 75c for both adults and children. The entire proceeds will go for tornado relief. Advance tickets may be purchased at the theatre box office or the Cameron Herald Office.

"Column South" promises to be an action packed drama with Murphy as its leading character. His gripping portrayals in such movies as "Gunsmoke" and "The Red Badge of Courage" have made him a favorite with theatre goers.

The Cameron Theatre's manager, projectionist and cashier are giving their services without charge, and the Herald has printed the tickets free. Therefore, the entire admission price will be used to aid Waco.

1587 Persons See Cancer Films, Yet Donations Needed

Hinton H. Pruett, Milam County Director of the Cancer Educational Campaign, announces that much progress has been made in this crusade. Pruett reports that in all, films and lectures have been given to 25 groups for a total attendance of 1587 persons.

Much literature has been distributed and much information given out to the people in regards to cancer. It has truly been a campaign of education and information.

Pruett states that there is one phase of the work that he is somewhat surprised at the results, this is, the lack of financial support given the campaign. The American Cancer Society is supported entirely by free will offerings. All the research, education and service is made possible by your offerings. Up to the present time there has been contributed in Milam County a total of only $147.78. This amount is entirely too low for a county like Milam. If you want to have a part in this work of fighting cancer, mail your contributions to American Cancer Society, care of your local postmaster or to Oxsheer Smith, Citizen's National Bank, Cameron, Texas.

DOYLE ARMSTRONG, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Armstrong, was winner of the Bendix TV set in the Cameron Herald subscription-selling contest. Second was Ruth Matyastik, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Matyastik.

Doyle, 15, is a member of the eighth grade graduating class and will enter high school in the fall. He is active in several sports including football, volleyball, and swimming.

A member of the seventh grade, Ruth is 13 years old. She raises calves as a hobby and now has a show calf.

At the close of the contest at 12 noon on May 16, Doyle had sold the highest number of new subscriptions plus a number of renewal subscriptions which did not count toward the prize. He received a 17-inch Bendix table model television set, complete with Austin antenna. It was installed at his home on Monday.

Thirty-five kids of all ages entered the 16-day race. Besides Doyle and Ruth, they were: Wanda Kirk, Gale Griswold, Myrna Gail Jackson, Carroll Moore, Gabriel Cavazos, Harold Pimpler, Louise Condray, Rose Marie Matyastik, Carol Ann Leonard, Johnny Solomon, Patie Graham, Johnny Trochta, Milton Harrison, Wilma Baldridge, Billie Nell Johnson, Curtis Morgan, James Posey, Eddie Pavelek, Marvin Junek, David Hromcik, Janice Jistel, Joyce Mullinax, J. W. Beale, Burk Barr, Virgil Walston, Bobby Joe Hutman, Robert Hertenburger, Carroll Green, Jr., Ben Kennon, Henry Clore, Johnnye Wayne Stevens, Janice Bridges, and Edward Holland.

The bumpy, narrow section of U. S. 190 between Cameron and the Bell County line will be rejuvenated this summer. The $434,471 contract was awarded Wednesday to Holland Page, Austin contractor.

Work must start within a month, but possibly it will begin earlier than the 30-day grace period between awarding of the contract and the beginning of construction allows.

The new road will be 56 feet wide on a 120 foot right of way. Instead of the wavy 27-year-old road now in use, it will offer a smooth driving surface.

The new highway will follow approximately the same route as the present one, running close by the Santa Fe tracks. Some curves will be taken out and the Cameron entrance will be changed from two and a half miles out of town.

At Buckholts the highway will stay by the track and no longer will go down the main street. The two sets of right-angle curves, which have been a motoring hazard, will be eliminated.

Several years ago Bell county reworked its section of U. S. 190 from Temple to the county line. With this new section completed, Milam County residents will have easy access to Temple.

No completion date was specified in the contract.

A $113,177 contract was also let to H. B. Zachery Co. of San Antonio for road paving and construction. Included in that contract was the paving of the road from Jarrell to Schwertner, and a road from Liberty Hill to connect with U. S. 183 in Williamson County. The Jarrell road will connect with a farm road recently constucted from Bartlett to Schwertner and will give access on pavement from Bartlett to Jarrell and U. S. 81.

Laake Drug Company sponsored the league. The trophies were awarded by the Knights of Columbus Club.

In making the announcement, Moseley said that the local chamber has employed W. C. Wallace as their attorney to prepare a petition to be presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission. The petition will serve as a means of intervening in the case to present the case of the people in Milam County. He said also that other communities on the Southern Pacific line between Waco and Giddings have been contacted by the chamber in an effort to have them join with Cameron in their support of the Southern Pacific.

JUSTICE, IN SOME CASES

The early courts of Texas handed down some of the strangest decisions on record. With legal libraries almost nil and with few precedent cases to follow, many frontier judges in an effort to be "practical and quick," held the scales of justice in wobbly or reckless hands—if they did not actually tip them.

A frontier cowboy was charged with stealing a mule from a nester. Nesters were unpopular with cattlemen. The judge, a ranch owner, handed down this decision:

"A horse thief is usually hanged by the neck until he is dead, but there ain't nothing in the statutes about stealing a mule. Since a mule is half horse and half jackass, it might be proper to hang this man till he is half dead. Nobody but the great Almighty knows how to half hang a man, and He ain't representing this case. So I'm sentencing the prisoner to take the mule and get out of the country, and that way we'll get rid of them both at once."

Charging a frontier jury usually was not a long or tedious process. Judge Roy Bean's customary charge in homicide cases consisted primarily of the question: "Should the deceased have departed?"

One day a railroad employee who had killed a Chinese laundryman in a dispute over a bundle of wash was brought into Bean's saloon courtroom for trial. The judge produced a dogeared copy of the "Revised Civil Statutes of Texas" of 1879, his complete law library. This ceremony indicated the court was in session. For several silent moments the judge thoughtfully thumbled the pages of the book before rendering his decision: "Aain't nothing in the Statutes of the State of Texas sez it's agin the law to kill a Chinaman. Case dismissed."

It is said that Judge R. M. Williamson, better known as Three Legged Willie, often let his emotion of sympathy influence his court actions. On one occasion he reputedly speeded up procedure for the benefit of a defendant. He had just pronounced the death penalty on a man. The prisoner was asked if he "had ought to say why the sentence of death should not be pronounced upon him." The man, speechless with fear, stood death pale and paralyzed with fear, his "eyeballs literally started from their sockets in view of the appalling sentence." The judge looked at him for a moment and then "melted in sympathy." He called the sheriff and said: "I think you had better take him out and hang him. He has lost his consciousness and sensibility and his neck can be broken without his knowing it or feeling it."

Coroners seldom concerned themselves with legal phraseology, but their verdicts were usually understood. Here are a couple of typical ones:

"We find that Jack Smith came to his death from heart disease. We found two bullet holes and a dirk knife in that organ, and we recommend that Bill Young be lynched to prevent the spreading of the disease."

"We find that the deceased came to his death by an act of suicide. At a distance of a hundred yards he opened fire with a six-shooter upon a man armed with a rifle."

Jurors were sometimes careless in phrasing their verdicts. A widow, in order to save her four children from starving, took a cow that belonged to a cattleman.

She was charged with the grave offence of cow theft and brought to court. There she told the whole sad story just as it happened. A jury of chivalric sons of the old West were equal to the occasion. Their verdict: "We, the jury, find that the defendant stole the cow but she stole it in self defense."

A Wichita Falls jury was confused at the end of a trial of a boy charged with stealing a car when the court peremptorily instructed it to find the defendant not guilty. The jury went out and in a few minutes came back with the following verdict signed by the foreman: "We, the jury, find the boy who stole the car not guilty."

The unpredictableness of early courts was reputedly expressed by a colored attorney in Judge Ed Hill's court: He arose and declared: "Yoah Honah, I understands dat dis honorable co't is liable to render a decision on de slightest provocation."

Mrs. Dan Robertson of Milano visited in Cameron recently.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Boedeker and daughters, Jo Ann and Carolyn Jean, of Houston visited in Cameron and McGregor over the weekend.

THE LITTLE RIVER PHILOSOPHER SAYS JUGGLING FUNDS AROUND TO PAY THE TEACHERS IS POOR BUSINESS

Editor's Note: The Little River Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm at Marlow is about like a lot of people, he's interested in seeing the school teachers get a raise but not in doing anything about it himself.

Dear editar:

Of course, it's not my main problem, in fact, if I was hard pressed I'm not sure I could tell you what my main purpose is in the first place, but I've been doin some more thinkin on the school teachers' problem of getting a raise and I was interested in a proposed solution I ran into yesterday in a copy of a newspaper which I picked up in town and brought home with me to stuff in a hole in the back screen door where I've been noticin flies are gettin in.

Accordin to this solution, which was proposed by some Representative in Austin, it might be possible to get enough money to pay the teachers their raise by jugglin the state funds around.

I don't know whether the state's finances are in the same shape as mine or not, looks like they might be—more demands for spending than there is money to spend—and if they are, I can say right now it won't work.

If anybody is an expert at juggling money around, I'm it, and over a long period of years I've found that you can plug a few holes, stave off the noisiest creditors for a while, by juggling funds around, but in the long run it's a mighty poor way to do business. That is, I like it all right, but the creditors don't. Makin one creditor happy at the expense of another doesn't give you much real peace of mind in the long run, as there ain't nothin more unreasonable than an unsatisfied creditor.

And the state will find the same thing out. It might juggle some funds around and pay the teachers and get em off the politicians' necks, but some other would take their place and the politicians would be right back where they started. I can tell the legislature now that jugglin funds is no substitute for raisin money, I've tried it for years and it never has worked very long for me, although this ain't to say I won't try it again the next time I get in a financial jam.

The only way, as I see it, for the legislature to get the teachers their raise is to raise some money, and how they're goin to do that is more than I'm prepared to say, as I've discovered long ago who pays the taxes in the final analysis. It's pretty hard to get a thinkin man to devote much thought to increasin his own taxes. We need two branches of government, one to vote salary increases, the other to raise the money and then resign and take cover.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Correct SS Number Must Be On All Earnings Reports

The most important thing a person can do to protect his insurance rights under the Social Security Act is to make sure that his social security account number is recorded correctly on reports of his earnings, James B. Barclay of the Austin field office of the Social Security Administration said today.

He pointed out that is is advisable for a person to compare the account number shown on his own records, such as payroll receipts, tax withholding statements, his self-employment income tax return, etc., with the number shown on his social security account number card. Tf there is a discrepancy, he should get it corrected; otherwise he may not receive all the social security he should for such earnings.

An individual's own personal records of earnings are of increasing importance because of a feature in the law, known as "regularity of employment tests." These tests apply in cases of employment on farms and in domestic households. Work must have been performed on a certain number of days and a certain amount paid in cash wages in a given period in order for these wages to be covered by the law. So, in the events a wage earner does not agree with the amount reported for him, it will be much easier to establish whether he has a right to such credit if he has his own records of time worked and wages paid.

Cotton Classing Offered Free; Apply By July 1

Repeat business is the best evidence of how successful a Smith-Doxey cotton improvement program is, according to Frank S. Dial of the Austin Cotton Classing Office, USDA.

Approximately 275 organized cotton improvement groups made application to the Austin office each year for the past several years. These groups represented approximately 21,500 cotton farmers with whom slightly more than 300 cotton ginners cooperated in submitting samples for classification. Dial stated that farmers have learned the advantages of USDA's cotton classing and market quotation services which are available without charge. He emphasized that farmers who again wish to qualify for these free services make application at an early date in order to insure the services will be made available to them.

Application blanks may be obtained from your county agent, your county PMA office, or by writing to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, P. O. Box 1140, Austin, Texas.

The goal date for filing applications is July 1, and, if planting is now complete, application should be made immediately in order to avoid the rush later, Dial stated.

Wright Says Cattle Should be Vaccinated Against Blackleg

DID YOU KNOW that your local FHA office has $405,251.40 outstanding to Milam and Burleson County Farmers as of March 31, 1953. That we have made loans during the last 10 months of $119,930.00? With this in mind we believe you will agree that we are helping farmers in this two-county area a great deal with their agricultural problems.

BLACKLEG. There have recently been several cases of Blackleg in this area. In at least two instances it has been on FHA borrower's farms. In each instance, the County Supervisor insisted no longer than January of this year that cattle be vaccinated your cattle, then try mia. One borrower lost two head which were worth enough to vaccinate a good sized herd the rest of his life. Negligence really costs us sometimes. If you have not to do it immediately before this disease strikes your cattle.

Plans For Texas 4-H Round Up Take Shape

The annual Texas 4-H Club Roundup will get underway the afternoon of June 9 and will officially close after breakfast on June 12. In between will be a schedule of activities and training meetings for the 4-H members and their local adult leaders. The locale is the campus of Texas A&M College.

According to information released by the general committee, the first planned group activity will come on Tuesday night—parties for the leaders and 4-H members. The official opening session is scheduled for Sbisa Hall on Wednesday morning. Dr. G. C. Baker, Jr., chaplain, Southern Methodist University, is the featured speaker and will use the theme of the Roundup, "From Here Where—What Does the Future Hold for You," as the basis for his address.

The delegates, after the address, will take their places in assigned groups to develop the points raised by Baker. The leaders will meet in a separate session. A chuck wagon feed is scheduled for Wednesday evening. The 4-H visitors will spend Thursday morning seeing Texas A&M College and in the afternoon will hear reports from the 12 groups.

The annual banquet is scheduled for Thursday evening and will again be given by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation. C. T. Johnson, southwestern area director for the Foundation is arranging the entertainment part of the banquet program.

Attendance for the 1953 Roundup is limited to one 4-H boy and girl and one man and woman an adult leader from each county in the Staae, two county extension agents from each district and all district extension agents—about 1,000 total.

Southern Pacific Lines in Texas Win Recent Safety Award

E. C. Cole, local agent for Southern Pacific, has received word that the railroad's Texas and Louisiana lines have won one of the six safety awards given by the National Safety Council.

Mr. Cole said the Southern Pacific award was for winning first place last year in the 20,000,000 to 50,000,000 man-hour group. The railroad's ratio of injuries per million man-hours for 1952, he said, was 3.78 as compared with 5.95 fo rall railroads in this category.

The safety record established by Southern Pacific in Texas and Louisiana, was substantially better than the national average, statistics compiled by the National Safety Council show. The six Class I roads to receive safety awards finished the year with a 4.07 ratio, as compared with a 7.31 ratio for all railroads in the group. Class I railroads are those whose operating rvenues exceed $1,000,000 annually.

PTA Gets Stung by a "Bee"

The local PTA is feeling sheepish today. Seems they complained the youngsters weren't learning enough. Said they couldn't even spell. So the kids challenged them to a spelling bee.

"I was captain of the PTA'ers," "Doc" Brown told me. "Both teams made the first round just fine. But on the second round Speedy Taylor went down on 'efficiency.' Then his boy Chip, who happened to be next on the school team, rattled it right off. From then on it was murder!"

So now "Doc" says that the whole PTA is thinking of signing up for night school!

From where I sit, it always pays to look and think before you leap to conclusions. Take those folks who would deny me a temperate glass of beer without a moment's thought. They wouldn't want me to interfere with their personal preferences for, say, buttermilk. It's a good idea to think twice before you "spell out" rules for your neighbor.

The fleahopper feeds on the juices of tender parts of the cotton plant . . . causing greatest damage to immature squares. The infested plants grow tall and whiplike with fewer branches . . . produce only a few bolls near the top.

Thrips . . . universal pest, responsible for extensive damage to cotton in early season. Usually about 1/25 of an inch long, they are slender, active bugs, pointed at both ends and varying in color from light yellow to almost black.

IMPORTANCE OF EARLY-SEASON COTTON INSECT CONTROL

Thrips, fleahoppers, grasshoppers and first generation boll weevils are ready and waiting to start early-season feeding on your cotton. Blasted buds, scarred leaves and punctured squares give evidence of the serious damage they inflict while feeding on the young crop . . . damage that gives you poor quality seed and fiber . . . greatly reduced profits. So it makes good sense to start control now and avoid this damage.

Watch for these signs:

1. Thrips are at work if the leaves of young cotton appear cup-shaped or scarred and plants are severely stunted.
2. Fleahoppers are at work if new squares and terminal buds have been pierced, causing them to drop. Fleahoppers prevent setting of squares and result in tall, gangly cotton with few fruiting branches.
3. Boll weevils are at work if squares flare, wither and dry, hang limp or fall to the ground.
4. Grasshoppers are at work if the familiar pattern of ragged leaves and plant destruction is present.

How to control these pests

Aldrin deals these early-season insects a knockout blow. It is fast. Even if it rains next day, no matter . . . the kill is made. At recommended dosages—just an ounce or two per acre—aldrin is the insecticide least harmful to beneficial insects. As a dust, aldrin is smooth-textured and free-flowing. As a spray, aldrin forms top-creaming emulsions . . . eliminates nozzle clogging.

Where to get aldrin

Your insecticide dealer handles aldrin and will be glad to recommend the proper treatment best suited for your particular insect problem . . . or ask your county agent. The important thing, though, is to act early.

Notes by County Supervisor Roy Wright

SPRING CLEAN-UP time is here again. The purpose of SPRING CLEAN-UP is to make the farm a healthier and safer place to live and to reduce the suffering, loss of life, and loss of property caused by accidents and fires each year. This can be accomplished if every farmer cleans up his own farm. Farm work accidents cause 4500 deaths and 250,000 injuries each year. Many of these accidents can be prevented if we will clean up around our farms and look for those things which will cause accidents and take the necessary action to eliminate the cause. This is an important part of our farming since we usually have one or more FHA farmers each year who get seriously hurt as a result of accidents that might have been prevented.

COTTON INSECT CONTROL doesn't cost—it pays. Early season insect control is here. If we are not ready to apply cotton poison—then we should get ready immediately. We should buy at least enough insecticide NOW to put on two early-season applications. There have been more failures of cotton insect control from being too late than any other one thing. Let's put on the first application when the cotton has 3 to 4 leaves and follow it at 7-day intervals with two or more applications using a quart of toxephene at each application.

Denial Recommendation at Hearing On Railroad Branch Causes Furor

A recommendation for denial of the application of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company to extend a connecting line from their Waco-Giddings branch to the Aluminum Company railroad has caused a furor that is being heard from Milam County to Washington. The application was to build a connecting line five miles long extending from the branch line at a point just south of Rockdale to a point about midway between the Sandow Southern Railroad which connects with the Missouri Pacific and extends to the Aluminum Plant, which would enable the Southern Pacific to render freight service from the huge plant to all parts of the nation.

Local civic leaders and executives of the Aluminum Company testified at the hearing in Washington in favor of the application but the Examiner of the ICC who heard the case, disregarding this testimony and basing the conclusions on the fact that it was not a public necessity and convenience, recommended to the of the rail line. All interested parties will have until May 25 to file objections to the report.

Mr. Frank L. Magee, vice president and general manager of the Aluminum Company, and other officials appeared as witnesses and stated that the entire operation of the Sandow Plant would be more efficient with the addition of another railroad. They stressed the part played by the Aluminum Company in national defense and want the additional railroad service to insure against car shortages and possible interruption of the flow of materials into the plant; that the additional railroad would provide a Commission against construction said that the last economical hope for the area lies in industrialization. He testified in favor of the greater measure of protection Milam County at the hearing, connecting line while emphasizing the need for the revenue to give life blood to this branch line, which said was to keep the railroad operating, and the railroad is needed to bring industrialization to the country it traverses.

Oxsheer Smith, representing against interruptnon in rail service which may be caused by labor disputes, washouts, embargoes, etc., and that access to an additional trunk line would afford more transportation service and open new routes.

The representatives of the Sandow Southern Railroad intervened in support of the application of the Southern Pacific for the reason that it is interested in obtaining the best possible service for the Aluminum Company and would be placed in a better position to attract additional industry if a connecting line were built.

H. L. Bell, assistant general manager of the Texas and New Orleans Railroad Company, testified that his company has been keeping a check on volume of traffic on Waco-Giddings line since 1942, that the studies which have been made pertaining to the revenues and cost of operating indicate that the branch is not at present paying its operating expense and that if additional revenues cannot be obtained, it would be necessary for the Southern Pacific to give serious consideration to requesting authority to abandon the line.

He presented data showing that the four counties server by the branch line; namely, Falls, Milam, Lee, and Burleson, have decreased in population materially since 1900. There has also been a decline in cotton production and the amount of cotton handled on the rail lines. He stated the number of inbound and outbound carloads of traffic on the branch for the years 1942 through 1952, was 7,622, 5,389, 4,524, 4,215, and 2,551. He further showed that there are 16 stations on the branch between Waco and Giddings and 14 of these stations will be left without service if the track is abandoned.

The Examiner, in his recommendation to the Commission, has taken the view that Missouri Pacific Railroad has ample facilities to furnish the needed service to the Aluminum Plant and that the authorizing of the construction of track by the Southern Pacific would be a duplication of rail transportation facilities, and therefore, an economical waste, serving only to divert traffic from one line to another. He apparently gailed to give consideration to the needs of people along the Waco-Giddings line to retain this line for their service. He also failed to give consideration to the need of the Aluminum Company for extending and improving the transportation facilities to and from their plant.

A delegation from the Cameron Chamber of Commerce is scheduled to attend a mass meeting to be held in Lexington Monday. The meeting concerns the possible removal of the T&NO Railroad (Southern Pacific) if their branch line to ALCOA is finally disapproved.

Cities all up and down the line are fighting the decision passed down by an examiner for the ICC which stated that the branch line to ALCOA was not necessary.

The meeting in Lexington has been called for Monday, May 18, at the Lexington High School Gym at 8 p. m., for the purpose of acquainting the residents of the area with the necessity to intervene with the Interstate Commerce Commission on behalf of the Railroad.

The meeting was called jointly by T. W. Simmons, president of the Lexington Chamber of Commerce and A. P. Kleinschmidt, Supt. of the Lexington Independent School District.

Also present at the meeting will be delegates from Giddings.

Such cities as Lexington, Rosebud, Lott and Chilton will be completely cut off from rail communication if this line is removed.

Removal of this line will be a definite blow to Cameron, not only from the loss of part of their present rail service but also from the fact that it will hamper any future industrialization of this area due to the lack of rail communications.

Many residents of the area are writing the chairman of the ICC to enter their pleas and demands that he give careful consideration to the matter of a branch line into ALCOA and not ignore the irrepairable damage that would be done to this section in case the Southern Pacific should be forced to remove its line.

Any of those wishing to write letters to the chairman, should address them to:

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

By Herman Yezak

May 11-15. The Senate took up a bill to modify the auto inspection law. The Senate adjourned during a debate on the bill while an amendment raising license fees for inspection stations from $2.50 to $100 per year was pending.

A Constitutional amendment is pending that would increase the funds for public welfare services including monies for old age assistance from 35 to 42 million dollars annually. The proposal is identical to the amendment that met defeat by the vote of the people at a special election in November 1951.

A twenty-five thousand dollar emergency appropriation was granted the National Guard for expenses involved in aiding the Waco and San Angelo storm disaster areas. This bill was sponsored by Senator Secrest of Temple.

The toll road authority bill was sent to a Conference Committee over the protest of Dallas-Fort Worth legislators. The House refused to accept the toll road bill as changed by the Senate, giving it statewide application. The bill when passed in the House originally applied to the Dallas-Fort Worth area only.

The Senate passed a House bill allowing school districts to borrow up to one per cent of the assessed valuation and not to exceed $25,000 for repair and replacement of school facilities. The measure is applicable to all school districts and could be used to an advantage by schools in recent storm areas.

Bills of considerable consequence still pending that have a chance of passing includes the revision of the election code and judicial redistricting.

The House worked all day on May 15 on a plan to finance the pay raise for teachers. The House quickly adjourned over the weekend when an amendment to force local school districts to share a part of the pay raise by local taxation failed.

The House set May 27 as the quitting date for the 53rd Legislature by a 77 to 67 vote.

DR. WILLIAM M. McKINNEY of the Disciples of Christ mission board will be the principal speaker at a Men's Fellowship banquet May 27 at the First Christian Church in Temple. Men of other denominations are also cordially invited to attend.

Reservations for the 7 p. m. banquet may be made through the local Christian (Disciples) Church minister. Or send directly to Rev. Harrell Ree, 314 N. 5th Street, Temple. Banquet reservations must be received by the church by noon of May 26. Money need not be included with the reservation, but may be paid at the door.

The evening's program is presented under the auspices of the Christian Men's Fellowship of Texas Christian Churches, District No. 10.

Dr. McKinney is the executive secretary of the department of men's work of the United Christian Missionary Society. He came into the leadership of the department with an exceptional background for this responsibility. He has held pastorates in several influential churches in the brotherhood, and during the past war he served as a chaplain in Jimmy Doolittle's flying group in Okinawa. He held the rank of Lt. Colonel at that time.

Dr. McKinney received his education from Bethany College, Bethany, West Virginia, and Yale University. The former conferred on him the D.D. degree for outstanding achievements.

Rent Control Removed in Killeen And Florence

This will remove rent control authority in Bell and Coryell counties and Precincts Four and Five in Williamson county.

The decertification was made after a review which showed a substantial number of housing units had been completed under the defense housing and Wherry act projects so that immediate and foreseeable future needs have been met.

Alcoa Will Begin Production in Newly Completed Potline

Plans were announced by Aluminum Company of America for starting aluminum production in a portion of another potline at Alcoa's Rockdale Works.

Beginning of operation in the newly completed potline will increase Rockdale's present aluminum production by approximately 15 per cent, according to J. D. Harper, works manager.

Smelting facilities at Rockdale consist of four potlines in which aluminum is produced from refined aluminum ore. The first two potlines were placed in operation late 1952. The third and fourth units were originally scheduled to be put into operation late this fall when the new power plant will be ready for operation.

Early starting date of the third line was made possible when a new source of temporary power became available to Alcoa. Harper pointed out that this temporary power would be supplied by Texas Power & Light Company until Alcoa's lignite burning power plant is put into operation.

When in full operation, the new aluminum smelting plant will have a capacity of 170 million pounds of aluminum annually, and employment in the area will be approximately 1200 persons.

The annual flower show sponsored by the Delphian Club of Cameron has been cancelled due to the torrential rains, Mrs. Carroll Green, president, announced Friday. The show was scheduled for Tuesday, May 19.

The heavy rains with their accompanying hail and wind have severely damaged flower gardens as well as crops in this area. It would thus be impossible to have enough flowers of high quality to use as entries.

Victor Vaculin Has Conservation Plan In Progress

Victor Vaculin, who lives in the Pettibone community, is a firm believer in soil conservation. He purchased his 63-acre farm in 1947 and immediately started applying conservation practices to the land.

He has developed a complete conservation plan for the entire farm which calls for terraces with contour farming on all of the sloping land; wide grassed waterways to carry off the excess water, management of the stubble to protect the surface soil from the hot sun, driving rains, and winds; and a well-planned crop rotation using Hubam Clover, Austrian Winter peas, and vetch with necessary fertilizers to provide green clover, open up the subsoil and increase the organic content of the soil.

His pasture plan calls for mesquite clearing, over seeding with better grasses and grazing management to get best utilization of the grass and clover and to allow the bestter grasses to increase.

Victor either has finished or has in progress each phase of his conservation plan. He has stopped the soil erosion, increased the water intake and condition of the soil and is now to the point where more work will be put on increasing soil fertility and increasing production.

This conservation program has not only stopped erosion and improved the soil, but it has also shown an increase profit each year as shown by his increasing from two cows to twelve in five years; and at the same time increasing the total amount of cash crops sold each year. Mr. Vaculin is a conservation farmer and believes that conservation pays.

Juniors, Seniors Dine and Dance In Hawaiian Setting

Hawaii came to Cameron for the Junior-Senior banquet and dance Thursday night. A large crowd of members of the two classes and faculty dined in the tropical setting.

The dinner was served at Simon-George Hall by the women of the St. Rita Circle. The Hall was decorated to represent the Wacaini Club, a Hawaiian restaurant. The menu offered fried chicken, green beans, potato salad, pickled beets, fruit salad and cake, hot rolls, and iced tea. Plate favors were tiny figures dressed in grass skirts.

The Junior Class was in charge of the floor show, with Dick Jenness as Master of Ceremonies. Jane Henderson, president of the junior class gave the welcome to the seniors and Pete Tindall of the senior class responded.

The gym, in which the formal dance was held, had been transformed into a tropic wonderland. Entering through a grass hut with thatched roof, the young people found themselves faced with a mural of a volcano on one side and an incoming ship on the other. On the stage a lovely girl reclined under a tree strumming her mandolin. Two other Hawaiian manikins floated in a canoe nearby. Palm trees, fishnets and blooming greenery completed the setting.

The Aggieland Orchestra provided music for dancing. Refreshments of punch and cookies were served.

Flower Show Cancelled

The Delphian flower show, which was scheduled for May 19, has been cancelled due to the heavy rains in this area.

Mrs. Carroll Green and Mrs. Rollan Carr extend thanks to those who had spent time and effort in working on the show.

And there is nothing whatever for you to do. Just keep holding your Bonds as you have been. The continued earning period is absolutely automatic. The Bond you got for $18.75 can now pay you $33.67 . . . a $37.50 Bond will be worth $67.34 . . . and so on.

This is true of all Series E Bonds—the ones you own now and any you may invest in in the future. Every Bond you invest in now starts earning interest sooner and matures earlier, too.

Of course, any Series E Bond may still be redeemed at any time after you have held it for two months. But you'll be smart to hold on to it if you possibly can, just as you hold on to savings in any form.

8 million Americans now save regularly with Defense Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan. Are you one of them? If you're not, why not start now? Join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. It's one sure way to save because it saves something out of every check before you have a chance to spend it.

Proposal Asks Milam County Be Left As One-County District

Proposed changes in judicial districts in the Central Texas area brought a brand-new recommendation to the senate committee on judicial districts in Austin. It suggested that Milam County remain in a district by itself.

Judge W. S. Barron of Bryan spoke for a large delegation of judges and lawyers from several counties east and north of Temple. He objected to the house-passed bill which would set up these judicial districts:

77th District: Falls, Limestone and Freestone. (Falls now one-county); Limestone and Freestone are now in two-county district.)

85th District: Brazos and Robertson, (Unchanged).

20th Distirct: Milam alone.

77th District: Limestone and Freestone.

85th: Brazos alone.

32nd: Falls and Robertson.

This recommendation, concurred in by lawyers from the counties concerned, would maintain the present number of courts, where the House plan would have eliminated one court among the six counties.

A delegation from Williamson county asked that it be left in a district by itself. Sen. Jarrard Secrest of Temple, who represents Milam, Bell, and McLennan counties, told the committee:

"If the committee in its wisdom is willing to treat Milam the same as Williamson, we will be very pleased."

The committee will take a vote this week on the proposed changes, after a series of four hearings of which the Central Texas one was the first.

Milano's Passenger Depot Modern In Design Throughout

Milano's new modern depot opened officially on May 1, with an informal open house. The $26,000 depot is a joint project of the Santa Fe and the Missouri Pacific railroads and was built to replace the original depot destroyed by fire on March 11, 1952.

The new railroad station employs many new building features of the modern trend. Included are exterior walls of brick, glass doors, aluminum encased windows, flat roof, and white embossed lettering which marks each side of the building as the Milano depot.

The interior is floored in tile, and boasts flourescent lights, accoustical ceilings, and walls of green glazed tile.

Space is provided for comfortable waiting rooms, with adjoining tile rest rooms, for both white and colored patrons, a combination ticket sales and dispatcher's office, storage room for signal equipment and emergency power batteries, and express and baggage storage.

Thirty-five trains pass through Milano each day, including 12 passenger and 23 freight trains. They provide travel and shipping to all points in the nation.

The Temple Housing Corporation was in charge of the construction of the new passenger depot which was started around the first of December and completed April 1. The $26,000 construction price included the building and all fixtures other than railroad equipment.

the Southern Pacific was presented to the examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The examiner ruled that the application would be denied and necessity would not justify the extension as proposed by the Southern Pacific.

The next hearing will be before a minority group of the Interstate Commerce Commission at which time Cameron will have a petition on file.

While testifying before the examiner, Oxsheer Smith stated that if the application were approved and the Southern Pacific granted permission to serve Alcoa, "It would give a blood transfusion to a dying railroad." He stated further that if the line were to be abandoned, it would create a serious loss to Cameron and Milam County.

The Southern Pacific presented evidence to the examiner's hearing that the Waco-Giddings line is not paying its way at the present time. Traffic has shown a continual decline and if additional traffic cannot be obtained it will be necessary to give serious consideration to requesting authority to abandon the line.

The request to extend the Southern Pacific line was supported by the Aluminum Company of America, Milam County and the Cameron Chamber of Commerce, the General Services Administration of the United States Government, Congressman W. R. Poage and the Southern Pacific Railroad. The only opposition presented at the hearing was the International-Great Northern Railroad. (Missouri Pacific).

Moseley said that the Chamber of Commerce is very much concerned over the possibility of the line being discontinued but at the present time our efforts are being concentrated on assisting the Southern Pacific in getting approved the application to have an extension connect with the Rockdale-Sandow and Southern Railroad to serve the Aluminum Company of America.
